ANNUAL REPORT OF THE
BOARD OF EDUCATION,
For the year ending March 1, 1892.

FELLOW CITIZENS :

In presenting the annual report as required by law, it affords us pleasure to say that our schools have made good progress during the year. Our aim was to secure the best teachers for their respective situations. In compliance with a vote at the last annual meeting to dispense with the High School at the town hall, we have tried to accomodate the advanced pupils in the district schools, but feel constrained to say that the need of a separate school for the older scholars is more apparent than ever. It is too much to expect of our teachers to be able to instruct, thoroughly, pupils who are learning the alphabet together with those who are taking Algebra, Physiology, History, Book-keeping and the many other studies that are taught in our schools.

How shall we accomodate the advanced pupils in our town in the future?

We would suggest that a new building be erected at the Centre of the town with two schoolrooms— one of which to be used for a graded school for all scholars in town who are qualified to enter the same; the other to take the place of the Centre school. The same amount of money that is now expended for schools would be sufficient to run the four schools and this proposed graded or high school,

It is a disgrace to our beautiful town to allow such a dillapidated, inconvenient and unhealthy building, as is the Centre schoolhouse, to be used for school purposes. The good citizens of this district are entitled to a modern building.

The South, West and East schoolhouses are in good condition and answer well for school purposes. Extensive repairs will soon be needed on the Centre schoolhouse.

As none of the schools have closed, the table of statistics is partially incomplete. The full length of term is given in every district, but the "number of visits by citizens" would be largely increased if the attendance the final week could be inserted.

The expenditure for books and supplies embrace, one hundred Harrington's spelling-books, arithmetics, grammars, geographies, book-keeping, writing-books, ink, pencils, pens, paper, etc.

The schools are well supplied with text books, but need a few books of reference and supplementary reading. If the town adopts the provisions for a Free Public Library the schools will be benefited greatly thereby.

In the early history of our Country the qualifications which ensued to it's youth a contented, respected and tolerably prosperous future were few.

There was for all enough and to spare, and to the boy blessed at the start with a sound mental, moral and physical constitution, nourished and protected by the influence of the typical New England home, all that was needed was pluck and perseverance, backed by a fair common school education to secure for him his allotted portion of the earth and the fullness thereof.

For the girls preparation for the future was equally simple. The "Queens of society" were those who won their crowns in the home circle, and the question concerning one who had attained to the dignity of young lady-hood, were oftener as to whether she had the ability and disposition to make his home attractive and pleasant to all the dwellers therein, than whether she could interpret faithfully the vagaries of the so called musical classics, or elucidate with clearness the knotty problems of political economy.

A classical education was looked upon as a preparaton for the professions of Theology, Law or Medicine, and the prerogative of the favored few, rather than as a means of fitting the masses for the battle of life— and a scientific knowledge of the Mechanic Arts came oftener as the result of the application of an intelligent mind to their actual practice, than as the result of previous education.

But with the progress of time all this has changed. The unalterable law of evolution, the apparently irresistable tide of immigration, and the insatiable greed and ambition of mankind have changed about all the conditions under which we live. There are no longer desirable positions, in which recognition and advancement are dependent alone upon worth and ability, to be had for the asking.

There is on longer room on New England's farms for all her sons to earn their independence at the most independent and noblest of all occupations, and the time has about passed when a sturdy and upright manhood, backed by the education of the "three R's" will win a place among men.

Each year since the Declaration of Independence, has been marked by the invention of some particularly notable labor-saving machine, and each machine has tended to depreciate the value of manual labor, and to create a demand for men of higher mental training. The development of electricity and the application of the subtle force to endless mechanical devices has created a demand for Electricians, who, to be successful must have a complete knowledge of Physics and Chemistry—studies which cannot be successfully mastered without the foundation of a liberal education.

These are but links in a chain of circumstances which, be it right or wrong, is producing in this country a division of the classes that will eventually become complete, on the one hand “Nobility”—“Aristocracy”—or call it what you will of education, and on the other the serfdom of ignorance.

Upon parents will devolve the responsibility of deciding to which of these classes their children shall belong.

Whether by establishing and maintaining the best educational institutions they will send forth their sons equipped with the weapons and skill that will enable them to fight their way to, and maintain their position in, the front ranks; or whether by neglecting to avail themselves of modern institutions, they will condemn sons and daughters alike to the darkest slavery the world ever knew—that of ignorance.
